INTRODUCTION:

1.1: Overview
This teacher’s book is designed to be used as a teaching resource with well explained activities in the student’s book. Exercises have been answered and rubrics showing assessment criteria and standard given. The teacher should use a learner-centred approach with a variety of activities that will develop competencies and values attitudes needed so that students become full individuals who can deal with current issues and global challenges.

Some activities require the teacher to use his/ her own judgement; especially where questions require opinions from students. Although suggested answers have been given, they are not final. The teacher should expect different answers some of which might be wrong. The teacher’s role is to facilitate student’s responses in a constructive manner. Since many activities have been provided, the teacher should choose those that match with the time and level of students.

The book is written in such a way it is easy to navigate information and issues related to a competence based curriculum. Each Unit is based on a specific theme and all language in the unit is related to the theme. Units are further divided into parts all based on the same theme. At the end of each unit in the student’s book, a unit assessment is given. However, the teacher can add more questions or choose how appropriately to assess.

Crosscutting issues, competences to be developed, knowledge, skills and values and attitudes are clearly indicated. The teacher should be familiar with these terms and ensure that they are handled since they are the one that make a competence based curriculum different from the knowledge based one. More about the above will be explained independently.

1.3 Methodology
The learning and teaching methods to be used should be learner-centred; developing knowledge, skills as well as values and attitudes that will enable students become practical and not passive receivers of knowledge. Some of the methods and activities to be used include: Learning by playing, role-playing, brainstorming, thematic teaching, Integrated teaching, story Telling, facilitating Skills, discussion Method, inquiry Method, problem Solving (Theory of Constrain), mastery Learning.

The learning should be activity based (learning by doing). Several activities are given both in the student book and other extension activities in this teacher’s resource book. The activities are designed to cater for different competencies, skills and crosscutting issues students are expected to develop. However, teachers should design other activities they consider suitable for their students depending on the needs of the learners.

The activities are also designed in such a way that they encourage learners to be independent thinkers and create their own knowledge (Constructivism theory). Extended activities are given to cater for students with special needs as some students might need more challenging tasks than others in the class. The teacher should therefore identify students with special needs and design ways of supporting them to supplement the ones given in the book. More information about methodology is giving in annex 1.5.
1.4 Assessment
In this book, diagnostic, formative and summative assessments are used to ensure that students’ progress is monitored.

Diagnostic assessments are given at the beginning of most activities to test students’ prior knowledge of the content to be taught. This can give the teacher a clear picture of where to begin from or how to structure the lesson basing on what students already know.

Formative assessments are in form of exercises given and activities during the lesson to check students’ understanding before moving on to another step of the lesson. Some activities are given as a way of introducing a lesson, as development of the lesson and as homework and project work.

Every unit has a summative assessment inform of unit assessment to check students’ progress throughout the unit. Teachers can give other summative assessments after two or three units as mid-term or end of term exams. There are sample mock exams at the end of the units for students to practice and get the feel of the real exam.

All the assessments in the book directly or indirectly test knowledge, skills and values and attitudes. For example activities to be done in groups can be an opportunity for the teacher to assess, cooperation and interpersonal relationships, respect for each other, teamwork among others, and through observation the teacher set a criteria for giving marks. A rubric for assessing oral presentations is given in this book.

The questions in the student book are designed following bloom’s taxonomy; from low, medium and high order thinking as below:

- Low order (knowledge and understanding): define, name, list, identify, etc
- Medium Order: explain, describe, examine, classify, express, etc
- Higher order: compare, analyze, illustrate, differentiate, etc.

Sample rubrics for awarding marks for dialogues, oral presentations, composition, paragraph, letter writing and brochure are given in this book to help the teacher be objective while awarding marks. The rubric should be explained to the students so that they know what the teacher expects from the students’ answers for each activity and exercise.

The rubrics have the criteria and standard of assessment. The criteria is the what will be based on to award the marks and the standard is the statement which qualifies the mark as excellent, very good, good, average or below average. The standard corresponds with the mark given following a certain criteria.

The records from all assessment should be kept in a formal professional manner so as to effectively monitor the students’ progress.

1.5 Cross-cutting issues
In the competence based curriculum, crosscutting issues are a fundamental part of learning and teaching process. Crosscutting issues in two categories in this book. Some are unit specific whereby they are clear and easily identified in the unit. For example unit seven about the history of Rwanda clearly addresses the crosscutting issue of Genocide studies and peace and values education.
Each cross cutting issue has its own important content that is part of the book but the cross-cutting issues are not stand alone units or sub units. They are integrated throughout the book, thus a teacher should identify any opportunity to talk about them.

There are eight cross cutting issues which include: Genocide Studies, Gender, Peace and Values Education, Standardisation Culture, Inclusive Education, Financial Education and Comprehensive sexuality Education. A detailed description of the above crosscutting issues is given in annex1.4.

1.6 Competencies

Competences are very important and have been clearly illustrated both in the student book and in this book. Each unit starts with a unit competence to be achieved in the process of learning and teaching the whole unit. The teacher can design other competencies to be achieved in parts as a guide of what students are expected to do by the end of the part. Competences are in two categories;

(a) Basic competences:

- Numeracy, literacy
- Communication in official languages
- Science and technology
- ICT and digital competency
- Citizenship and national identity
- Entrepreneurship and business development

(b) Generic competences

- Critical thinking: the teacher should use verbs like: analyze, arrange, develop, evaluate, examine, point out, etc.
- Creativity and innovation: the teacher should use verbs like: design, produce, organize, develop, integrate, etc.
- Research and problem-solving: the teacher should use verbs like: apply, discover, find out, survey, point out, produce, suggest, etc.
- Communication: the teacher should use verbs like: observe, listen, explain (verbally or in writing), etc. The teacher may give various tasks like debates, discussions, presentations, group work, etc where learners are encouraged to talk with one another.
- Cooperation: learners should be encouraged to work together, to respect the views of others, to commit and to contribute fairly to the collective effort. The teacher should use words like: co-operate, collaborate, teamwork, jointly, together, mutual benefit, collective effort, etc.

For a student to be competent after using this book, she/he should demonstrate a certain degree of the following:

- He/she must know the writer’s status, the letter format, courtesy rules, and grammar rules.
- He/she must be able to conjugate a verb, accord it to the subject, and use all his /her knowledge depending on the context to state the request clearly and accurately.
• He/she must be courteous and respectful in writing, reread spontaneously what has been written.

All those three categories which are knowledge and understand skills and attitude must be gathered in a basic competence called Literacy because learners should express ideas, messages and events through written legible texts in good hand-writing with correctly spelt words. They should also communicate ideas effectively through speaking using correct phonemes.

The generic competences in this situation are Communication, Creativity and innovation because the learners should communicate clearly and confidently using a range of linguistic, symbolic, representational and physical expressions. They should generate original ideas and apply them in learning situations.

The student book is designed in such a way that all the above competences are catered for through the content and most importantly, the activities in the book are designed to develop these competencies.

1.7 Annexes.
This part is the last consisting of very important sample documents and detailed explanations of some of the competence based curriculum components not explained here in the introduction. Annexes include sample unit plan, sample lesson plan, proposed student-centred seating plans for whole class and team activities, explanation of crosscutting issues and methods and techniques that are learner-centred.

Teachers should refer to the content map for the above documents which are very important for delivering a competence based curriculum because the documents it annexes show the difference between the knowledge based book and the competence based book.

Teaching points

- Introduce the lesson with the pre-reading activity in their student books to be done in pairs or groups that will stimulate student’s thinking. Take about 10 minutes on this activity.
- Ask a few students to present and give some comments.
- Ask students to tell you
1. improve on his job, complain all the time etc.
2. I would advise my friend to make research about the career, consider his/her values, know about him/herself, seek advice from experts, and think about lifelong learning.
3. Yes, it matters which job one chooses. Reasons are same as question 1 if you choose a wrong career and the opposite if you choose a right career.

Activity 4: Vocabulary matching

Catering for learning special needs

For more advanced students,

For students with difficulty in tenses, help them to review them in your explanations asking them to make sentences in the target tenses (simple present, simple past, future and past perfect)

For less advanced students

If you bought five books and lost two, you would remain with ____

If you had built two houses of three rooms, you would have _______ tenants.

- Ask students to tell you the topic this activity is related to in English and the importance of the topic. You should expect answers like to learn mathematics, to know how to conduct business, to make wishes and regrets etc.
- Give some explanations about if clauses and put students in groups of four or more to study table...... in their student books.
- Encourage them to ask questions to each other and then when they fail to ask you?
- Give them time to do the exercise in their student books

1.3 Describing daily routines

Introduction

Daily routines are all activities you do every day such as going to school except for holidays. In order to talk about daily routines, you have to use the simple past tense with adverbs of time like usually, always, every day, etc. In terms of jobs, we have things we do every day in specific kinds of jobs. In this lesson, we are going to talk about daily routines of a doctor.

Possible answers

Activity 1: pre-reading

Answers will differ. However, there are some common activities like preparing for school, attending classes, doing exercises and homework etc.

Activity 2: Comprehension:

1. Kayitesi’s work is difficult because:
   i. It requires both mental and physical preparation.
   ii. She also has to take care of children and make sure they go to school.
   iii. Many patients to work on in a single day.
2. Because she wants to teach children to respect time. Students should support her because time management helps to be... organized, to avoid stress, to be successful etc.

3. Doctor Kayitesi has to maintain high level of hygiene because of the nature of her job, which deals with human life. If she doesn’t maintain high level of hygiene, her patients will get infections during surgery.

4. I would add time for coffee, resting time and recreation or entertainment time. I would remove preparing children for school and advise her to hire a maid.

5. Kayitesi loves her job because she says she does not complain and considers it her duty to save lives.

Activity 3: vocabulary and expressions

i. Takes matters seriously
ii. Someone who carries out operations on sick people
iii. To stop infections on a wound or cut area.
iv. Surgeons must always be clean
v. Not to make the people she treats get sick or infected.
vi. Having problems while producing a baby.

Activity 4: Timetable

Post-reading activity:

- The timetable below is a sample you can use to guide students. However, student will have their own ideas and reason for them.
- They should be creative balancing work with leisure.
- This task can be done in groups to encourage discussion.
- Each student should make his or her own study time table making sure they balance studies and play.

Have been looking  10. Has been working  11. Has been wasting. | • Introduce this lesson by asking students to say something they stated doing sometime before now and are still doing now. For example: we have been studying English for 1 hour. Write their sentences on the chalkboard and ask volunteers to correct wrong ones and say why they think they are wrong.
• Ask them to tell you the topic you are going to teach and write their suggestions.
• Ask them to take a few minutes to read the explanations in their student books.
• Carry out a plenary session using question and answer about what they have read as you give clarifications.
• Allow students time to do the exercises. |

Supplementary exercise
Using the present perfect continuous tense, write ten sentences about the changes that have been taking place in Rwanda and are still going on. (This exercise can be done in pairs or groups.)

1.5 Describing Job Qualifications

Introduction

A job qualification is something someone studies as his or her career. When the person finishes the studies, we call it a qualification; meaning the person is qualified to do that job. There are many job descriptions that you have to identify in this lesson by filling a crossword puzzle in group.

Possible answers

Activity 1: Pre-reading
Answer will be different from one group to another. This just a sample

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Qualification</th>
<th>Reasons for choosing the qualification</th>
<th>Benefits</th>
<th>Risks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. Teacher</td>
<td>Love for children</td>
<td>Lifelong learning, love from students, respect, trust, earn money.</td>
<td>Student's failing,</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Activity 2: Comprehension

1. The speaker studied a bachelor's of science in finance and entrepreneurship.
2. Creative, hardworking, social, communication and good time management.
3. She is experienced in communications and marketing for eight years.
4. Her project “Smart Business Minds” won a national award, got promotion and became employer of the year.
5. Answers will differ but will be related to her achievements and qualities.

Activity 1E.3: Crossword Puzzle

- Introduce this lesson by asking students to list the job qualifications they know or ever heard of and ask them to list the words in somewhere because they will help them in the next activity.
- Ask them to take time and find out the name of each job performed by the person described.
- When they have finished this stage, tell them to fill their words into the crossword puzzle.
- Ask student to exchange their books, show them the correct
Activity 4: Speaking
Use the rubric for oral presentations to support students during their presentation by telling them what is expected of them.

Activity 5: Summarizing
Answers will differ depending on what the group will have discussed. Guide the students on what makes a good paragraph i.e.
1. Topic sentence
2. Support sentence
3. Example or evidence
4. Conclusive sentence

Supplementary exercise
Choose what the people who do the jobs you have found in the crossword puzzle study in order to be qualified in them.

The words are:
Fisherman/firefighter/miner/musician/doctor/scientist/plumber/mechanic/rancher/vet/artist/policeman/nurse/dentist/programmer/astronaut Janitor/truckdriver/pilot/athlete/mail carrier/farmer/chef

Catering for learning special needs
For less advanced students
To cater for special needs as students work, ask them to share the tasks. For instance, a slower student can be the time keeper, one with impairment be the group leader etc. Alternatively, give the students the answers to match with the statements first and then fill in the crossword puzzle.

For more advanced students
When grouping students, make sure that advanced ones are mixed with less advanced or vice versa depending on your class.

1.6 Relative clauses
Introduction
This lesson is intended to help students learn how to use relative pronouns who, which, that, whose, whom and where*. Sometime these relative pronouns are used with prepositions of, to, in and by. In relation to jobs and qualifications, you have seen the way we describe people and their jobs using “who”, “that” but we can also use these other pronouns.

Possible answers

Activity 1: Table study
Ask students take a few minutes to study the tables and assign each group what to present on.
Give some clarifications or explanations where they seem to have trouble and correct their sentences titled “try this”
1. The man who lives next door is very friendly.
2. Where are the eggs which were in the fridge?
   a. The man whom I wanted to see was away on holiday.
   b. Have you found the keys which you lost?
Activity 2: Exercise
1. I like the dress Ann is wearing/ I like the dress which Ann is wearing.
2. The museum that we wanted to visit was closed when we got there.
3. A lot of the friends whom I invited to the party couldn't come.
4. The fish, which we had for dinner, was very delicious.
5. Last week I met a girl who was my best friend in primary school.
6. I didn't get the job which I applied for.
7. The flight which we wanted to travel on, was fully booked.
8. She is married to a man who had been married twice before.

8. The thief who has terrorised the city for many years has been caught.
9. My father, who once worked as an engineer, is now a pastor.

Example: a farmer is a person who cultivates land.

Throw to as many students as possible. Play for about 10 minutes

- Ask students to suggest the topic you are going to teach.
- Ask students to get into groups of four or more depending on class size and discuss the information they see in the tables. Give them enough time to discuss as you move around.
- Explain the use of relative pronouns step by step. You might need about two or more periods for this lesson.
- Give students time to do the exercises as you move around helping those who might be stuck.
- To conclude this lesson, use a hot seat game where some students come to the front, students ask them questions about the lesson, and you give final remarks.
10. Could the man, whose car driver is Moses, take it away from the compound!

For less advanced students
Prepare a simpler exercise for students who might be having problems especially exercises with prepositions should not be considered for this category.
During the discussion of tables, in case you have students with impairments, give them appropriate roles, e.g. in case you have hearing impaired students, let them read, the physically disabled can be group leaders and groups be formed where they are.

For more advanced students
For advanced students, let them do all the numbers while others do around ten of them.

1.7 Talking about job experience
Introduction

This lesson is about job experience; an important component in a curriculum vitae and getting a job. Curriculum vitae is a written account of one’s life comprising of one’s education, accomplishments, work experience etc; especially used to get a job. This lesson will help students know how to record their work experience and how to get it.

2.1 Talking about running a business

Introduction

This lesson is about the tips that help someone to run a business so that it can equip students with entrepreneurial skills. The knowledge and skills got from this lesson will help them in other subjects and in their daily lives. They will also acquire reading, interpreting and critical thinking skills.

Possible answers

Activity 1: Pre-reading
An entrepreneur is a person who organizes and operates a business and takes risks related to that business.
Note: Students will have different definitions in their own words. Look for key words in their definitions.

Activity 2: Comprehension
1. Mrs. Mukandoli did not manage to buy any clothes because buyers were many, it was difficult to find the right outfit and they were expensive
2. Very little capital, no connections in the fashion world and people who thought her idea was unrealistic.
3. She was creative, hardworking, and persistent/determined to succeed.
4. She designed her own collection of twenty clothing items.
5. She sewed her first collection in her sitting room.
6. She decided to call them “Inyarwanda” because they were made in Rwanda.
7. She expanded her business and hired more tailors.
8. Other people have copied her business and her clothes are on high demand across the country.

with the information in their students and clarify any misconceptions you noted during their presentations.

- Ask them to do the exercise.
- Conclude the lesson by asking each student to say one important point about the simple present as you write his or her points on the chalkboard.
- Ask students to submit their books for marking and arrange the class in properly.

Catering for learning special needs
For less advanced students
In case you have students with dental problems (missing teeth), it will be difficult to pronounce some sounds, ask other students not to laugh at them.

Also students with hearing problems will have problems with pronunciation. Use visual aids like charts or chalkboard.

For more advanced students
Ask these advanced students to other five words for each sound in case they are idle.

2.3 Buying things

Introduction

This lesson is intended to teach students skills of buying things from shops or other places. Students will learn expressions used for buying, vocabulary comprehension and grammatical structures. They will also learn how to work as a sales person and satisfy customers (customer care).

Possible answers

Activity 1: Pre-reading
This activity is to encourage speaking. Allow students to take a few minutes speaking to each other. And have a few pair to present.

Activity 2: Comprehension
1. The sales person’s job is to ensure that customers’ needs are satisfied by helping them to get what they want.
2. Making an impression means to make the customers feel satisfied and happy about your services.
3. You can make a positive impression on the customer by providing product care advice, directing customers to the right directions and giving them attention in general.
4. Predicting customer’s needs mean being able to guess what the customer needs through the questions you ask him/her.

Teaching points
- Introduce this lesson by asking students to recount their experiences with buying things. The experiences might be funny, embarrassing or educative.
- Ask students to work in pairs.
Another way to say buying motive is buying intentions. It means wanting to buy but sometimes not sure what to buy. The best questions are searching questions.

Activity 2C.3: vocabulary

Activity 4: Dialogue speaking exercise

Activity 5: Summary writing Practice

Writing Practice:

Either:

- Guide students using the generic composition rubric in the annexes.
- Answer will depend on each student’s business plan.
- Steps for the business should be clear.

Or:

Use the rubric for letter writing in annexes.

Points to consider:

- What does the customer do? (Is he/she and employee or business person?)
- Why the writer needs a loan (what is he/she going to use it for)?
- How will she or he pay it back (how much per-month and for how long)?
- Who are his/her guarantors in case she/he fails to pay?

Unit 3: Folktales

No of lessons: 18

Key Unit Competence: To use language learnt in the context of folktales.

Learning objectives
- Identify the use of the past simple and past continuous tenses and connectors of time.
- List the vocabulary of folk tales and stories.
- Listen to/read traditional folk tales and stories.
- Read extracts from works of literature.
- Recount an incident in the past.
- Write about an incident in the past.
- Folktales teach about our culture, heritage and history.
- Universal folktales can help us appreciate cultural diversity.

Materials: Pictures, photographs, storybook, etc

3.1 Talking about folktales

Introduction

This lesson introduces students to folk tales by enabling students to understand the mean, importance and examples of folktales. Students will be able to identify tales in their culture and write their own.

Possible answers

Activity 3A.1: Pre-reading

1. Folktales are stories which passed from one generation to another by word of mouth. Most folk tales keep changing because the story tellers keep on adding or removing some information.

Characteristics of folktales in the story

i. There is involvement of animals such as cows and mythical lioness.

ii. There are several moral lessons in the story such as courage, consequences of bad temper, violence which we have to avoid if we are to leave peacefully etc.

iii. Involvement of spirits because the father of Ryangombe is believed to have been a spirit.

iv. A complicated game that the hero almost lost Etc.

Activity 2: Comprehension

1. A. Ryangombe is a spirit the son of Babinga and Kalimurori. He announced himself heir to his father.
   b. Babinga is the father of Ryangombe and considered to the “King of spirits”.
   c. Kalimurori is the mother of Ryangombe. She was so violent and stubborn until she married Babinga.
   d. Mpumutimucuni is the man who was competing with Ryangombe in a game which would determine the future leader.

2. The four evils committed by Binego are:
   i. He speared a heifer, a cow and her calf. He would have loved the cows.
   ii. He speared his uncle. He would have observed human rights.
iii. He killed two men who refused to leave their work and guide him. He would have asked them kindly.

iv. He killed a baby for no particular reason. He would have been empathetic and leave the baby alone.

3. The game played is a board game. It was to determine who the future leader would be; the one who would win the game.

4. Ryangombe won the game.

5. If Ryangombe had lost the game, he was to handover the kingdom and his opponent would shave his head and he would cease to be a royal.

6. Binego lacked patience, empathy and love. He would be helped by being trained, demonstrating to him good values and being loved.

Activity 3: Vocabulary:

1. The expressions mean:
   a. Decided or started killing her father’s cattle
   b. He stopped her to graze cows
   c. The two decided to solve the problem by playing a board game.

2. The opposites are:
   i. comfortable ii. Lioness iii. Accepted/allowed
   iv. Joined v. peace vi. In front vii. peace viii. Lost

Activity 4: Role-play

Use the rubric for oral presentations to guide this role-play. Work with groups to make sure they are on the right track. The best practice is for them to first identify the main ideas and a kind of dialogue.

Activity 5: Dialogue

Guide students on components of a good dialogue such as punctuation, use of correct tenses, keeping it short and use of conversational language.

Supplementary exercise

Ask students to discuss in groups the weakness of each character in the story and what values would encourage them to respect.

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Since folktales were originally told by word of mouth, encourage students with language difficulty to retell the story in their own words.
3.2 The past tenses

Introduction

This lesson will help students to learn how to use two tenses together correctly and when to use them. They will also understand how the two tenses (simple past and past continuous) are used in stories and apply the skill to write their own stories.

• Introduce this lesson with an activity where students are given a situation and they have to make sentences in past.
Example: The telephone rings-listen to music.
The telephone rung when I was listening to music, so I didn’t hear it.
Electricity goes-watch a movie, play football-it rains, students study-the visitor comes, the radio play-battery stop to work, etc.
• Ask other students to correct the answers of their colleagues and intervene when they fail
• Tell students to read the notes in their student book and copy them into their exercise books.
• Ask them to do the exercise in context. |

Supplementary exercise
Diary writing activity:
Have students write about what they did yesterday paying particular attention to transitions of time (next, then, after that, finally, etc.).

This tense mixture sometimes confuses students whose language background is not good. Take time to explain in details this lesson.
They can create their own stories with a mixture of the past simple and past progressive.

3.3 Reading stories

Introduction

This lesson will improve students reading skills and motivate them to read other oral traditional stories from their culture and compare with other cultures. Students will know how to select, reading, make notes and summarize what they have read.

Activity 1: Reading aloud
Follow the rubric for reading to award marks to this activity. Each student about 1-2 minutes to read a paragraph depending on its size and student level.

Activity 2: Comprehension
1. Ryangombe’s mother saw a small beast without a tail, an animal of one colour, a stream running two ways at once and an immature girl carrying a baby with a sling (ingobe)
2. Ryangombe was gored by a buffalo and finally died because of refusing to listen to the mother.
3. Ryangombe died when he followed a buffalo and speared it. He started to celebrate thinking he had killed it but it woke up and gored him and ran away.
4. A bloodstained leaf dropped out of the air onto his mother’s breast.
5. Binego asked the direction where the buffalo had gone; found a woman, brought her back and killed her together with her child by cutting them into pieces.

Discussion in groups of four:
1. The positive values found in this story are courage of both Ryangombe and Binego, love of Ryangombe’s mother, support given by Ryangombe’s family to go and hunt.
   The values lacked are respect where Ryangombe did not respect the mother, betrayal where servants refused to go home and report what had happened, revenge where Binego killed both the mother and child etc.

Activity 4: Story telling
Use the rubric for oral presentations to guide students while telling a story. The tips below are also helpful.

- Move your body in the storytelling. Aim your body one direction when you are one character, and then aim it another direction when you are a different character.
Use hand movements and face movements (called “expressions”) to help tell the story.
- Use different voices for different characters.
- Speak faster and slower and higher and lower.
- Make sure you speak loudly enough so that everyone can hear you.
- Say the words clearly so that everyone can understand you.

Activity 5: Summary writing.

Use the rubric for summary writing.
Help students to identify the main ideas as they work in their groups.

Supplementary exercise

Ask student with impairment that cannot allow them read to summarise the story in about 150 words as an alternative exercise.

Activity 3: Eyewitness report
Guide students using a generic composition rubric. Emphasize the use of first person, connectors, past tense and direct and indirect speech where necessary.

Supplementary exercise
Ask students to write a comedy strip of their lives making sure they are simple and funny.

Catering for learning special needs
Ask students with physical impairment and cannot write to tell their stories to a student who can help them to write it. You can also use a phone to record their stories.

Some less advanced student might find it difficult to write lengthy stories. They can write short paragraphs. Don’t expect the same work as advanced students from them, be patient and support them at every stage.

In case advanced students finish early, ask them to read essays of less advanced students and help them with spellings, tenses and paragraph structures.

3.5 Connectors
Introduction
This lesson will equip students with the necessary connectors they can use to link their sentences and paragraphs in their recounts.

Possible answers
Activity 1
- Answers will differ since each group will construct their own sentences.
- Ask one group to present their answers and the class says “correct” or “not correct” and give correct alternatives.
- Use the students’ examples to clarify where they did not understand.

Teaching points
- Begin this lesson by asking students to list the conjunctions on the chalkboard.
- Ask other students who did not write to use a conjunction each to construct a sentence.
- Correct students’ errors and explain how conjunctions are used as connectors.
- Tell students to study the table in their student books. Each group will explain one type of connector while other
Supplementary exercise
Ask students to construct sentences for each category of connectors at least using one of them.

Activity 4A.5: Discussion
1. Students will have different answers depending on the food they eat at home or school. Answers to be expected are balancing between proteins and fat and much carbohydrate. Drinking milk and other dairy products like cheese, ghee, yoghurt etc.
2. People may eat unbalanced diet due to:
   i. Poverty
   ii. Ignorance, just studied to pass exams
   iii. Scarcity of certain foods in the community such as vegetables in urban places.
   iv. Beliefs and taboos associate with some foods
   v. Laziness to prepare some foods considering them difficult
   vi. Considering taste than nutrients in some foods etc.

Speaking practice:

Group 1:
- Fruit and vegetables are rich in carbohydrates, which helps with bodybuilding.
  They can easily be found in our communities especially rural areas.
- Fruits are more scarce and expensive in urban places.
- Carbohydrates break down into glucose, which the brain uses exclusively for fuel.
- It also serves as the primary energy source for muscles and organs.
- Because of its extensive use in the body, carbohydrate should be the primary energy source consumed in the diet.

Group 2:
- Meat, fish and alternatives contain proteins and starch.
- Protein is necessary for making and repairing cells, such as muscle and skin cells.
- The body requires a smaller proportion of energy from fat and protein.
- Foods that are high in protein and fat can be consumed in smaller quantities.
- These foods are expensive and scarce that is why they are not commonly eaten.
- Some people in Rwanda don’t eat fish because of cultural beliefs.
- These foods are considered special and delicious and people who are considered to be rich can eat them so often.

Group 3:
Fat is important for protecting organs, for nerve function, and for transporting the vitamins A, D, E, and K. Food containing fat/sugar are not to be consumed in large quantities to prevent diseases like diabetes, hypertension and cancers. They are people’s most favourite foods and are considered special. When cooking, people should minimise the use of too much oils because they have a lot of fat. Fat from natural foods like groundnuts is not bad.

Group 4:
- In this category, we also find carbohydrates, which is important for our bodies.
- They are rich in the sugar lactose, and also are good sources of protein and calcium.
- These foods contain fats and proteins; therefore, they have the same importance as those in group 3 and 4.
- Also, the fat from these products is considered to be dangerous and therefore should be consumed in fewer quantities.

Group 5:
- Bread, other cereals and potatoes are healthy foods which contain carbohydrates (has similar points as group 1)
- Potatoes also contain starch, which produces energy when broken down into glucose.
- Cereals and potatoes are common in Rwanda and are fairly cheaper than diary and meat products.
- Traditionally cereals like sorghum were a very important food for Rwandans as their stable food.

Writing practice:
- This should be done as homework. Use the rubric for guiding and correcting students with formal letter writing.
- Information to fill in the letter will differ. Students are free to use their own words as long as they make sense and flow well.

Activity 4A.6: Letter writing
Alternatively, you can give students the answers below mixed up for them to fill in.

where to find them. 17. Grateful/happy/ to receive your reply. 18. Please write call us on... (phone number) 19. Yours Sincerely, signature and name.

Supplementary exercise
Ask students as part of their homework to list the food they will eat at home for dinner and advise the family on what was missing or consumed in large quantities unnecessarily.

4.2 Classifying Foodstuffs

Introduction

This lesson will help students to understand the kinds of food and the group they belong to so that they can know the nutrients they contain since they will have already studied about nutrients in sub-unit 1.

Possible answers

Activity 1: Food classification

a. The groups include:
   - Fruit: banana and orange juice.
   - Vegetables: broccoli, and chicken
   - Grain: spaghetti, low-fat popcorn, whole grain cereal and corn tortilla
   - Diary: low fat yoghurt, cheese stick and 1% fat milk
   - Meat and bean: baked fish and peanut butter
   - Other: fried eggplant and cream cheese.

b. The food group with most foods is grain and the least is vegetable.

c. They are all healthy but need to be balanced. However, foods with a lot of fat are not healthy.

d. Fruit would be easy to afford at home because the components can be grown and prepared directly without any processing.

Activity 4B.2: Research activity

This activity is supplementary to improve the language of learners. It should be done as homework.

Activity 3: Sounds of questions.

Give chance to all students to practice asking questions. You can use mimicry method where students repeat after you.

4.5 Determiners

Introduction
Determiners are words that come before a noun. They help us to understand number - whether the noun is countable or uncountable. There are very many kinds of determiners summarised in this lesson with their examples. Because there are many determiners, this sub-unit should be taught in about four periods or two double lessons.

5.6 Discussing Gender Equality

Introduction

Many people confuse gender with sex. They understand gender to mean female yet it is for all. East African leaders have agreed on a campaign known as “He for She” to promote gender equality. In this lesson, students will learn some cultural practices that affect gender and how to solve them.

Possible answers

Activity 1: Comprehension

1. Girls are not allowed to eat certain foods while boys can eat any kind of food. Girls are discouraged from climbing trees, sitting on a pounding motor and grinding stone while boys have no such prohibitions. When a boy fights a girl, he is seriously punished as compared to fighting a fellow boy.
2. Sometimes women were prohibited because of selfishness of men and at other times it was intended to protect them because men considered them to be weak.
3. The speaker’s mother did not know her rights because she accepted everything from the culture without thinking about them.
4. She considers certain foods dirty when the narrator says, “She believes these are “dirty” foods not meant to be eaten by women.”
5. The father gave hard labour to boys and spared girls while the mother treated both equally in relation to work. The father also never allowed boys to cook while the mother did.

Teaching points

- Introduce this lesson by asking students the taboos related to gender in Rwanda. They should be able to say; no woman should eat goat meat, no woman should sit on a pounding motor, it is a taboo for women to milk cows etc.
- Ask students why they think there were such taboos. Possible answer: In old times, men must have been selfish and denied women good things.
- Tell students to read the passage in their students’ books.
Activity 4: Composition writing

Homework
- Ask students to work in groups of four or more to put ideas into the mind map after copying into their exercise book.
- Then, they should make each circle a paragraph of their essay.
- Remind students the format of a good essay: contains introduction, body, and conclusion.
- Guide students using the rubric for essay writing in annexes.

Catering for learning special needs

| Encourage students (especially girls) to share their experiences of how they are treated at home as some might be having similar treatment making them less confident in class. | In this lesson, give less time to students who are already confident and ask them to encourage their colleagues who might not have confidence. |

5.7 Describing Minority Rights

7. The supreme God was also believed by Africans.

8. Animals are worshiped by some communities.

9. Buddha is believed in India or Buddha is believed by Indians.

Teaching points

- Begin the lesson by asking students to tell the difference between the passive and active voice.
- Give feedback and ask students to read in pairs or groups how or when the passive voice is used while asking questions to colleagues where they don’t understand.
- Move around helping groups which are stuck and finally have one group to present and others comment.
- Tell students to individually answer the exercises in their student
6.4  Talking about Dances and Arts

Introduction

It is said that, “Music is food for the soul”. Many communities have their own traditional dances and music. There is also music which is not specific to any culture especially the modern one. In this lesson, students will learn about Rwandan traditional music and dance, their culture and language skills like listening, speaking, reading and writing.

Activity 5: summary writing

Traditionally, Rwandan gathered around the fire and danced, sang, celebrated success. All events in Rwanda like weddings, baptism, anniversaries, launching new projects or political parties and welcoming a visitor are accompanied by music. Rwandan music and dance are unique due to its rhythm. The rhythm is created by clapping to support and encourage dancers. Rwandan music is categorised according to its dance steps including dance for war and hunting, for farmers, and for enjoyment. Rwanda music instruments use local materials similar to a guitar, bass drums, xylophone and blues. 94 words

Supplementary exercise
Debate: “Traditional music should be modernized in order to be more popular”

Catering for learning special needs
When choosing students to sing traditional and modern songs, make it voluntary so that you don’t make less confident students feel guilty.

Ask advanced students to draw or describe the music instruments in the story for other students to clearly understand them.

6.5 Describing Traditions

Introduction

They say, “A child who has not travelled is the one who calls the mother the best cook.” As people travel to different communities for different reasons, they find different traditions and get confused. human beings (For Christians, we were created in God’s image.

iii. Both believe the creator is superior to human beings because He created them.

2. In Rwanda, the creator is called Gihanga meaning to create, similarly in western Uganda the creator is Ruhanga - the one who created, the Boshongo call Him Bumba - related to moulding, The Zulu call Him Unkulunkulu meaning one who existed before everything and, therefore, created them.

3. The Boshongo believe Bumba suffered from stomach pain and vomited everything starting with the sun which dried water and land was formed and others followed. The Zulu believe Unkulunkulu came from the reeds coming with people and everything else. It is not mentioned how Gihanga and Ruhanga created the things.

4. For those who agree, they can say that it is true because when you see things created you see the creator. People were created in the image of God; therefore, He is the first man. Those who say no can say this is worshiping idles which is against the bible. Also God is not man but a super-natural being.

5. They are hard to believe because;
   i. Each shows a different way the creator created such as vomiting and coming from reeds
   ii. They show the creator coming from different places and none seems to show the real beginning.
   iii. Calling God the first man is also unbelievable.

Activity 3: Crossword puzzle:

Note: students should be expected to get at least most of the words but not all.

Activity 4: Interview
Guide students through the process making sure they are speaking English as they interview their colleagues.
Activity 5: Speech Writing
Guide students through the speech writing practice as follows:

a. Their speech should have an appropriate title (brief and meaningful)

b. Introduction should give general information about the topic and a thesis statement. A thesis statement says what they speech is going to be about.

c. The body should be composed of different paragraphs. Each paragraphs should contain the main idea such as creation, colonialism etc. (gives evidence of what the thesis said - what the speech is about)

d. The conclusion gives a summary of what was said and/or an opinion, suggestion, call to action etc. (what I have told you.)

Use the generic rubric for essay writing for language and structure of the speech.
